

DEMOCRACY & HUMAN RIGHTS

Transnational Repression Series II: The Long Arm of Authoritarianism

OCTOBER 3, 2022

Transnational repression is a phenomenon that refers to the efforts of governments to reach across their borders to silence dissent living in the diaspora.

In the second series of this webinar, Orion Policy Institute brought together the experts working on this important issue. The experts presented their work and discussed the current trends and methods of transnational repression including digital repression, country-specific case studies, and policy recommendations for the host countries.

We were joined by:

Noura Aljizawi, CitizenLab | University of Toronto

Siena Anstis, CitizenLab | University of Toronto

Natalie Hall, Harriman Institute | Columbia University

Jing-Jie CHEN, Safeguard Defenders

(Moderator) Suat Cubukcu, Towson University

For more details contact us at <https://orionpolicy.org/contact>.

Follow us on Twitter and LinkedIn.